

Cobble Fantasies

By Heather Sinnott

Mid-May to Mid-June 2017, Foyer Wall, Art Gallery of Algoma

Anyone who has travelled the shores of Lake Superior knows that every beach is different. There are a multitude of non-primary and neutral colours. There are the textures of sand, pebble, gravel, cobble, boulder and cliff. There are patterns, from speckles to stripes to swirls.

Many a rock collector has spent hours meditatively seeking out what is, to them, the perfect stone. No Superior cobble beach has the richness of pattern and colour evident in these paintings but it is where the seeker's imagination leads ... to the beauty underfoot on Superior's shores.

Many of my Superior paintings have cobble foregrounds. I've often considered doing just the cobbles, with their complexity of composition, light, colour, pattern and movement. Stand in front of these paintings for a couple of minutes and let your eyes wander. Yes, there is a lot of rhythm in still rocks.
